

FirstClass Introduction Edition

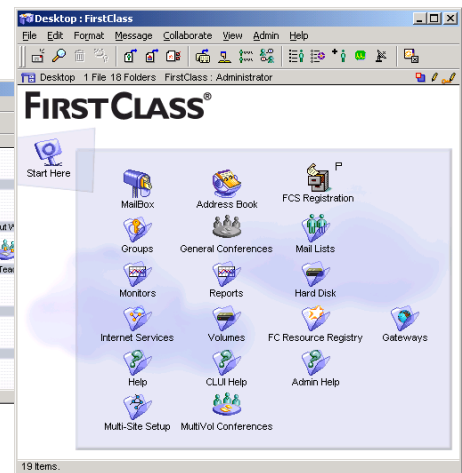

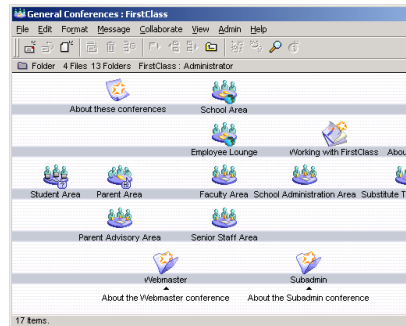

The FirstClass Introduction Edition is a free, fully functional, collaborative groupware offering that includes both the core communication server and Internet Services.

Why an Introduction Edition?

The FirstClass Introduction Edition is perfect for organizations evaluating their current messaging systems and considering alternatives. Smaller sites and departments can also take advantage of the Introduction Edition to evaluate FirstClass before implementing it throughout their organization. We are confident that FirstClass will prove to be an attractive alternative to other messaging and collaboration products. It is not a time-limited product but rather a fully functional groupware server that can be used in a production environment.

What's Included?

- messaging and collaboration
- calendaring and scheduling
- 5 user licenses
- web publishing
- information management tools
- multi-server communication
- complete documentation

Available Support

The FirstClass Introduction Edition is an unsupported product.

Introduction Edition customers are welcome, however, to read or download FirstClass documentation through our website at www.firstclass.com/documentation or through online help. These guides are freely distributable. We also encourage new administrators to visit FirstClass Online, our online community using the FirstClass.

Get It Now!

You can download the Windows or Macintosh FirstClass Introduction Edition by following the instructions found at <http://www.firstclass.com/downloads/introedition>

Adding Users or Modules

The FirstClass Introduction Edition comes with 5 users. Additional users, modules such as FirstClass Unified Communications, and Maintenance and Support can be purchased. Maintenance and Support provides FirstClass administrators with direct access to our Technical Support team and product upgrades!

Call 1.888.808.0388 (905.762.6135 in the Toronto area) to find out more!

Open Text Corporation

38 Leek Crescent • Richmond Hill • Ontario • L4B 4N8

tel: 905.762.6000 • fax: 905.762.6151